In 70% of cases genital herpes is transmitted

I'm very careful, and I always thought I was doing everything possible to protect my girlfriend from genital herpes. But when I learned that I could be contagious even when I don't have symptoms, I was shocked.

I asked my doctor, and he explained that genital herpes is transmitted through something called viral shedding. Too small to be seen, viral shedding can happen anytime, anywhere in the "boxer short" area of my body. Thanks to my doctor I now know that I can do more to reduce my risk of passing it on.

* Based on a clinical study to determine the risk of spreading genital herpes (GH) in 144 heterosexual couples in which one partner had GH, and the other did not. Couples were followed for a median 334 days and were counselled to abstain from skin to skin contact in the presence of lesions. Couples were educated on the potential protection offered by condoms during periods when there were no visible signs or symptoms.

Who knew?

when there are no visible signs or symptoms.*

THERE ARE MORE WAYS TO REDUCE THE RISK OF TRANSMITTING GENITAL HERPES THAN YOU MAY REALIZE.
ASK YOUR DOCTOR.

Pirates of the Caribbean: At World's End and Spider-Man 3 Games

Love the movie? Play the game. This year's batch of video game movie tie-ins include biggies such as Pirates of the Caribbean: At World's End, in which you can demonstrate your swashbuckling creativity as Jack Sparrow, and Spider-Man 3, in which you can be the friendly webslinger or his black-suited incarnation with more brutal moves.

Robin Williams, Michael J. Fox, Tom Hanks, Steven Spielberg are just a few of the stars featured in Hollywood Dads. Photographer Joyce Ostin captures 50 famous fathers with their children, with parenting wisdom from these dads sprinkled throughout. A breast cancer survivor, Ostin is donating her proceeds from the book to cancer research.

Jump Snap

$60 U.S.

This ropeless jump-rope is basically two jump-rope handles that you rotate as you jump. An electronic chip estimates the calories burned based on your height, weight and number of jumps. It's the official cardio exercise for Power Pilates in L.A. who trains Hilary Swank and other celebrities. It is also part of the celebrity gift bag for the Tribeca Film Festival. Available online at www.jump-snap.com.

The Making of Star Wars The Definitive Story Behind the Original Film

J. W. Rinzler Del Ray, $44

More than three decades ago, filmmaker George Lucas created a swashbuckling sci-fi saga called Star Wars. The rest, as they say, is history. Using his access to the Lucasfilm archives, Star Wars scholar (yes, scholar) J. W. Rinzler hurtles readers back in time for a behind-the-scenes look, including tales from the trenches, at Lucas' nearly decade-long quest to make the "little" movie that became a phenomenon 30 years ago this month.

Shrek The Third Soundtrack

Universal Music

The movie might be for kids (and kids at heart), but the soundtrack for this animated powerhouse will appeal to all ages. Oscar-nominee Eddie Murphy, who previously sang the Monkees' "I'm a Believer" and Ricky Martin's "Livin' La Vida Loca" as Donkey on the first two Shrek soundtracks, is back with a duet with Antonio Banderas (as Puss in Boots) on Sly & the Family Stone's "Thank You." The album also includes Fergie's cover of Heart's classic "Barracuda," Led Zeppelin's "Immigrant Song," the Ramones' "Do You Remember Rock 'n' Roll Radio" and Eels' "Royal Pain."

An Oral-B Pulsar electric toothbrush is shown vertically, with the white head and blue handle. The brush head features blue and yellow bristles. Concentric yellow circles emanate from the brush head, suggesting vibration or pulsing motion. The background is a light blue gradient.

But does she have the curves?

In an unlikely casting decision, Oscar-winning actress Nicole Kidman will produce and likely star in a modern-day version of the movie, How to Marry a Millionaire, the film that catapulted Marilyn Monroe to stardom in 1953. Sacha Gervasi (The Terminal), will pen the script for the film, which Kidman will produce through her 20th Century Fox-based company, Blossom Films. Kidman plans to play Monroe's part.

Spears PR Inc.

It's seems clear to Britney Spears that she doesn't need a stylist, a publicist, or a manager. According to the New York Daily News, Spears has in fact starting doing her own PR work by tipping off the paparazzi agencies before she heads out for daily errands. One would think that when crotch bearing nights out with Paris Hilton and desperate attempts for attention through head shaving stunts failed to promote Spears in a positive way, she would hire a team... and fast!

It's Miller time

Keira Knightley and Lindsay Lohan are reportedly on the outs after Lohan dropped out of the film The Best Times of Our Lives—about the loves of poet Dylan Thomas—just days before shooting was about to begin. It's now reported that Factory Girl's Sienna Miller will costar with Knightley, which will include a racy girl-on-girl sex scene.

Reese cools Jake down

Reports are swirling that Reese Witherspoon has cooled off her relationship with Rendition costar Jake Gyllenhaal. Although sources say the two are still fond of each other, Witherspoon, after turning down a weekend away in Santa Barbara with Gyllenhaal, wants to take things slow. The 31-year-old Oscar-winning actress even reportedly told Gyllenhaal to date other people until she's ready.

Hollywood Hills

No one will fess up, except The Hills' (MTV's mega-hit reality TV show) star Heidi Montag, that they've had a little help in boosting the chest area. Take Paris Hilton, trying to overturn her prison sentence, who says her new round knockers are the work of some sort of super bra, or that Jessica Simpson, already well endowed, had a little lift work done a while back.

Striking a Nirv

Courtney Love has decided to have an auction to sell the rest of her former husband, Nirvana singer, Kurt Cobain's things. Love says her house is like a mausoleum. "My daughter doesn't need to inherit a giant bag full of flannel shirts," says the 42-year-old rocker. "A sweater, a guitar and the lyrics to 'Smells Like Teen Spirit'— that's what my daughter gets. And the rest of it we'll sell." Love has been criticized in the past for selling Cobain's items but feels she has to move on. "I still wear his pajamas to bed. How am I ever going to go form another relationship in my lifetime wearing Kurt's pajamas?"

Hate, actually... for the tabs that is.

Hugh Grant accepted undisclosed damages recently from a British newspaper publisher over claims about rumored stories on his personal life. Grant sued after stories claimed he was flirting with a film executive while with girlfriend Jemima Khan, that he had sponsored a chimpanzee at a British zoo as a gift for Elizabeth Hurley's wedding gift and a third that claimed he resented having to do publicity for his films. Grant said, "I'm hoping this statement in court might remind people that the so-called 'close friends' or 'close sources' on which these stories claim to be based, almost never exist." On the flip side, Grant was recently arrested and questioned by police after a photographer accused the actor of attacking him with a tub of baked beans. Photographer Ian Whittaker told the Daily Star tabloid that he and Grant, 46, clashed near this home. Whittaker said Grant abused and kicked him before throwing the beans.

Revenge is oh so sweet

Clooney, Pitt, Damon and crew return for one final heist in Ocean's Thirteen

IF there were an actor in Hollywood who could draw an audience just on presence alone, it would undoubtedly be George Clooney. Guys want to be him, and women only wish they could snag him. He is, however, Hollywood's most eligible bachelor—still.

With his Golden Era movie star looks aside, the 46-year-old Oscar-winning actor (Syriana), turned director, is relied upon for more than his dashing looks. And as he again slips into his most suave role as Danny Ocean, we're reminded of his earning power at the box office.

With the first two Ocean's films, grossing almost $800 million worldwide, Clooney has proven himself one of the few working actors worthy of "anchor" status.

His Ocean's Thirteen co-stars Brad Pitt and Matt Damon can boast membership in the same club—one whose doors open to stars who can carry entire projects, be they critically praised or maligned, and fill movie theater seats on their names alone.

Hot of the heels of the Ocean's films, Thirteen, reportedly the final film in the trilogy, is expected to lure audiences craving more of the same caper-driven action from one of the highest-profile casts to appear together in recent film history.

It's Clooney's character Danny Ocean that leads the pack but any heist could not be pulled off without Ocean's smooth crew—Don Cheadle, Bernie Mac, Elliott Gould, Scott Caan, Casey Affleck and Andy Garcia. "In large part, the film was motivated by everyone wanting to work together again," says director Soderbergh. "But it was always with the understanding that it had to be 'all in' or we were not doing it—everybody comes back or nobody comes back."

In addition to the "all for one" pact "Thirteen happened because we felt like we could do it better than Twelve," Clooney tells iF magazine. "Soderbergh and I were like, 'We know how to do this.' We found a really good reason to do it, which is revenge, which is always better than just making money. Maybe ten years from now I'll need a job, but right now we don't plan on another."

In Ocean's Thirteen, Garcia's ruthless casino owner Terry Benedict joins forces with Ocean and his crew to take down hated Vegas hotelier Willy Bank (Al Pacino).

Mac is set to play in the big leagues

Pacino ready to be conned

After Bank double-crosses Ocean's friend Reuben Tishkoff (Gould), the crew attempts to bankrupt his prized casino on opening night.

"Thirteen happened because we felt like we could do it better than Twelve. We found a really good reason to do it, which is revenge, which is always better than making money."

George Clooney

"They're not stealing anything; they're letting everybody else rake it in," Clooney says. "You could say they're helping Bank give it away."

And, he pointed out, there's nothing quite like a casino floor packed with lucky players. "It's great to be around a table that's hot—like a craps table when people are winning," Clooney adds. "When you're around one that's on fire, the place just explodes. To have a whole casino on fire is everybody's fantasy."

So, too, is it a film fan's dream to enjoy so many A-list names acting in one film, let alone a trilogy.

Damon, who reprises his role as logistics man Linus Caldwell, sees his character take a more active role in the heist, one naturally befitting his own constantly-elevating spot on Hollywood's list of go-to leading men. And naturally, he gets the girl—Bank's right-hand woman Abigail Sponder (Ellen Barkin). "I finally get the love interest in one of these movies," Damon quips. Or does he? Turns out Linus' attempts at stealing a heart might be tied to the heist itself.

For long-time Clooney collaborator Soderbergh, twists like these in the Ocean's films reflect a Robin Hood-esque love of taking from the rich and giving to the poor—criminals, in this case. But in the third film, revenge, rather than the thieves' financial gain, takes over as a driving force.

Photo: KeystoneCanada

Known for having too much fun on set, Clooney, Damon, Caan and Cheadle take a time out to joke around.

"I finally get the love interest in one of these movies." Matt Damon

"I have always embraced the idea that these guys are thieves and con men," Soderbergh says. "But they're not entirely driven by money. Certainly, in this case, they are driven by friendship and revenge. The 'all for one and one for all' ethos dictates that when one of them is betrayed—especially in the way that their friend Reuben was betrayed—it's payback time." "It shows the kind of friends they are, and I think that's something an audience can get behind right away," Garcia adds.

For those who have followed the Ocean's films on screen, and off, will know that being on set with this bunch is a complete riot—with Clooney as the notorious practical joker.

Their dynamic on-screen rapport with each other probably explains the appeal of the films to audiences. Those feelings will no doubt be rekindled as the franchise returns to its Las Vegas roots for what could be the ultimate revenge job.

No doubt it will likely turn out to be another opportunity for Clooney—the patriarch of Hollywood's leading men—to prove once again why he's full of 21st century Hollywood cool.

A pirate's life for him

Johnny Depp sets sail one more time to play Captain Jack Sparrow in *Pirates 3

FOR years, Depp was something of a bete noir among his fellow Hollywood stars. He was the guy you got for oddball roles in decidedly uncommercial pictures.

All that changed three years ago with a movie based, bizarrely, on a theme park ride. Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl presented Depp with a once-in-a-lifetime chance to invent a truly iconic character: a charming, ne'er-do-well swashbuckler by the name of Captain Jack Sparrow.

The film was a surprise box-office monster and raked in $305 million U.S. For Depp, so long the outsider, it meant he finally headlined a major studio picture. Best of all, he grabbed an Oscar nomination as Best Actor. He didn't win, of course—the award went to Sean Penn, another outcast suddenly welcomed into the fold.

The supposed end to the trilogy, At World's End, finds Sparrow's friends Will Turner (Orlando Bloom) and Elizabeth Swann (Keira Knightley) joining forces with Captain Barbossa (Geoffrey Rush) in a quest to save the pirate from his mind-bending trap in Davy Jones' locker while the ghost ship, the Flying Dutchman and Davy Jones, under control of the East India Trading Company, wreak havoc across the Seven Seas.

Depp still professes to be shocked at the turnaround in his career. "I had gotten used to the idea of never having a successful film," he says, with a smile. "The fact that audiences came in and supported me was a win-win situation. That's an enormous surprise as well—the fact that people took the character in."

Nowadays he's picking up regular pay checks in the region of $18 million per movie. Still, he denies he does it for hard cash. As for the Pirates sequels, Depp claims it was purely and simply down to the influence of one man: Captain Jack Sparrow.

"I very selfishly enjoyed playing the character," he confides. "It's not as if there's an evil moment with me in a back room, counting money. It's never been about that with me. I'm not looking forward to saying goodbye to Jack Sparrow."

So if a Pirates IV appears on the horizon, would he do it?

"If everything was in the right place and the story was good, I'd stay on the ride, for sure. Just to be able to put the gear back on and become Captain Jack again. It's very satisfying."

—Allen Faulkner

Blanchett shares the same sun-sign as Queen Elizabeth II. And 2007 marks the second time this regal beauty has played Elizabeth I, first in Elizabeth (1998) and the forthcoming sequel The Golden Age.

Blanchett also has her sign's down-to-earth intelligence. Her choice of roles is always dead on; she's appeared in six Oscar-nominated films. Her sign's rock-solid qualities carry over into the personal life; with virtually no scandals attached to her. She'll do less big-screen work this year, preferring to focus on theater projects.

Jessica Alba

JESSICA Alba's career is on fire. With two movies opening within months of each other, Fantastic Four: The Silver Surfer and Good Luck Chuck, Alba is hot in demand.

Born on April 28, 1981, Jessica Maria Alba is a native of Southern California. But with her father serving in the Air Force, the family was forced to relocate every few years. "I hated it and I cried all the time," she remembers. "I went to 12 different schools. I was never properly socialized."

She did, however, fit into Hollywood.

Alba made her film debut at age 13 in Camp Nowhere, followed by the Nickelodeon series, The Secret World of Alex Mack and Flipper, along with movies like Never Been Kissed, Idle Hands, Paranoid, The Sleeping Dictionary and Sin City.

Currently, Alba stars in the upcoming Good Luck Chuck—a comedy about a serial dater played by Dane Cook—and Fantastic Four: The Rise of the Silver Surfer. She will also star later this year in Awake, a psychological thriller with Hayden Christensen, Bill, a comedy with Aaron Eckhart and The Eye, a thriller about a cornea transplant recipient who sees disturbing images in the mirror that sends Alba's character on a quest to find out what happened to the eye's previous owner.

But guys need not fret. They will see Alba return to fine form as the sexy stripper Nancy Callahan in Robert Rodriguez and Frank Miller's Sin City 2 next year.

Letters from Iwo Jima MAY 22

Clint Eastwood's follow-up to Flags of Our Fathers tells the tale of the Battle of Iwo Jima, a clash that claimed 7,000 American soldiers and 20,000 Japanese troops. Decades later, several hundred letters from the Japanese men who fought are unearthed from that stark island's soil. The letters give faces and voices to the men who fought there, as well as the extraordinary general, Tadamichi Kuribayashi (Ken Watanabe) who led them.

Norbit JUNE 5

Norbit (Eddie Murphy) has never had it easy. As a baby, he was abandoned on the steps of a Chinese restaurant/orphanage and raised by Mr. Wong (Murphy). All grown up, he's forced into marriage by the mean, obscene, junk food-chugging queen, Rasputia (Murphy, again). Just when Norbit's hanging by his last thread, his childhood sweetheart, Kate (Thandie Newton), moves back to town.

ELL in Hollywood it could be anyone these days. Here is the latest celeb mea culpas.

After his voice-mail rant in which he called his daughter Ireland “a rude, thoughtless little pig” was made public, Alec Baldwin apologized for “losing his temper with his child,” blaming the stress of the ongoing custody battle with ex-wife Kim Basinger for the outburst. He later appeared on The View and said, “There’s nothing wrong with being frustrated or angry about the situation. It’s the way you do it, and as people often do in this world, I took it out on the wrong person.”

“I’m very sorry and from now on I’m going to pay complete attention to everything. I’m sorry and I did not do it on purpose at all.” That’s what Paris Hilton told a judge before he sentenced her to 45 days in jail violating probation in an alcohol-related reckless driving case by driving with a suspended license. Hilton has asked fans to sign a petition on the Internet urging Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger to pardon her, but it is unlikely the hotel heiress will spend the whole term in jail anyway due to overcrowding in the L.A. County jail system.

David Hasselhoff's visitation rights to see his children were recently suspended. A Los Angeles judge temporarily barred the former Baywatch star from visiting daughters Taylor-Ann and Hayley following the emergence of a videotape showing him drunk in Taylor-Ann's presence. The videotape, which surfaced on the internet last week, showed Hasselhoff rolling around shirtless on the floor trying to eat a hamburger. The 54-year-old actor reportedly asked his daughters to video him when inebriated so he could “see what he is like.” His daughter is heard pleading on the tape: “Dad, you have to promise me you’re not going to get alcohol tonight, OK? You hear me? No alcohol.” Hasselhoff said the film had been “maliciously released,” adding: “I’ve seen the tape. I’ve learned from it and I’m back on my game.”
