FILM FEST FEVER

Nicole Kidman stunned the paparazzi while touring the TIFF red carpet for her new drama Rabbit Hole. Rabbit Hole has been rumored to be a Best Picture shoe-in at this year's Oscars, with critics praising it as Kidman's finest performance since 2002's The Hours.

Avatar star Sam Worthington brought things down to earth for his TIFF premieres Last Night and the historical thriller The Debt. Worthington celebrated Last Night at Tribute and eOne's closing night party at Atelier.

Between the hundreds of films and countless red carpets, the Toronto International Film Festival fans were treated to a star-studded 11 days, with showbiz's biggest and brightest turning out to greet fans. Tribute was there to interview the stars and play host to many TIFF parties at nightclubs Ultra, Ame, Stirling Room and Atelier along with its gold sponsors SKYY Vodka—who supplied TIFF-inspired cocktails, Acura, the official festival ride and jewellery partner Lia Sophia.

Josh Hartnett chatted about his new movie Bunraku at Tribute's TIFF interview suite.

Natalie Portman owned the red carpet at the premiere of her new film Black Swan, the Darren Aranofsky-directed thriller about a ballet dancer locked in tight competition with a younger rival.

Tribute's signature SKYY Vodka cocktails, the Berry Baruchel and Sweet Tart Tricia (after Jay Baruchel and Tricia Helfer) were a hit at the TIFF lounges at Ame, Stirling Room, Ultra and Atelier nightclubs.

The Acura vehicle was Tribute's official ride, driving partygoers in style to TIFF parties.

Javier Bardem hit the TIFF red carpet for his new Spanish drama Biutiful, which has garnered more praise for the actor. It was also announced during TIFF that Bardem and his new wife, Penélope Cruz, are expecting their first child.

Kevin Spacey was at TIFF to promote his film Casino Jack, and stopped in Tribute's lounge to talk about the movie and sign Tribute's Acura Golf bags for a charity auction.

Frieda Pinto walked the TIFF red carpet for not one, but two films: Miral, a Middle-Eastern drama, and the Woody Allen comedy You Will Meet A Tall Dark Stranger.

Eva Mendes brought the celebrations to a close with a touch of style at Tribute's and eOne's closing night party for Last Night.

Ben Affleck walked the TIFF red carpet for his film, The Town, also attended by his wife Jennifer Garner.

Ryan Phillippe talked about playing a real-life photographer and what it was like to film in South Africa for his movie, The Bang Bang Club.

The always-stunning Malin Ackerman came by to chat about her movie The Bang Bang Club.

Hollywood's Leading Ladies

Leading ladies of Hollywood are unstoppable on the big screen.

Tribute takes a look into the careers of some of Tinsletown's glamorous stars.

The Girl Next Door

Rachel MCADAMS

Rachel McAdams' meteoric rise to fame has never been short on box office success or critical acclaim, propelling the Canadian native to become one of the most in-demand names in Hollywood.

Born in London, Ontario, McAdams began her acting career at the age of 12, starring in summer camp plays and local productions before studying drama in University. After a few small TV roles, McAdams big break came in 2004, in the teen-comedy Mean Girls. That same year McAdams' became a household name starring opposite fellow London-native Ryan Gosling in the romantic smash The Notebook.

Following that, McAdams took on a variety of diverse roles, playing everything from a bride-to-be in The Wedding Crashers (2005), to a cutthroat journalist in State of Play (2009) and a con-woman heroine in Sherlock Holmes (2009).

McAdams will continue to mix things up this season as a TV producer forced to recruit a crusty news anchor (Harrison Ford) to a morning show, while juggling a blossoming romance (Patrick Wilson) in the romantic-comedy Morning Glory. McAdams told Ain't it Cool News that Morning Glory's modern TV news setting was a "world that has changed so much and it's really high gloss now, so it's fun to interpret it." Look for next year to be even busier for McAdams, when she takes on the Woody Allen comedy Midnight in Paris, and a rumored reprising role in the upcoming Sherlock Holmes' sequel.

The Hollywood Sweetheart

Natalie PORTMAN

Even though her acting career began at the age of 13, Natalie Portman has managed to avoid becoming a child-star casualty. In fact, she's the exact opposite: a strict vegan, socially responsible, Harvard-educated actress, writer and director.

Her big break came with the role of Mathilda in the acclaimed Luc Besson film The Professional, and she became a household name after starring as Queen Amidala in the Star Wars movies. Taking increasingly challenging roles in films like V for Vendetta and The Other Boleyn Girl, and making her directorial debut with New York, I Love you, Natalie continues to prove her talent as the years pass. In the upcoming Black Swan, from acclaimed director Darren Aronofsky (Requiem for a Dream, The Wrestler), she plays the slowly unraveling ballet dancer, Nina.

The stunning beauty recently made headlines as she signed a deal with the French fashion house, Dior, to front their new fragrance campaign—the first time Portman has ever done so. Claude Martinez, president and chief executive officer of Parfums Christian Dior, said: “We are extremely excited to have Miss Portman embody our house. She will symbolize with grace the values of luxury and the glamour of Dior.”

But her primary focus is on her movie career. “You’re trying to do your best with everything, with your whole soul as much as you can, and sometimes people completely ignore it and you have to be fine with that,” she told Vanity Fair. If the Oscar buzz surrounding her performance in Black Swan is any indication, no one is ignoring what could be the pivotal role of her career.

—Katharine Watts

“It’s obviously a better feeling if people do relate to what you put out, but ultimately it’s got to be about your expression and not about a popularity contest.”

The It Girl

Anne HATHAWAY

With her creamy skin and thousand-kilowatt smile, 28-year-old Anne Hathaway is a quintessential Hollywood starlet. She first turned heads when she played royalty in The Princess Diaries. The fairy tale continued when she achieved further fame through her role in The Devil Wears Prada, and then showed the world she could be taken seriously with a turn in the edgy Rachel Getting Married, for which she was nominated for a best actress Oscar.

In her most recent film, Love & Other Drugs, she plays opposite dreamy Jake Gyllenhaal as a free spirit named Maggie who doesn't want to be tied down—until she finds her perfect match in Jamie in the most unlikely of places.

Maggie and Jamie's evolving relationship takes them both by surprise, as they find themselves under the influence of the ultimate drug: love.

In real life, Hathaway, a spokesmodel for Marc Jacobs and Lancôme, hasn't had the easiest path towards finding Prince Charming. In 2008, her longtime Italian real estate developer boyfriend Raffaello Follieri was arrested for fraud and Hathaway was left heartbroken, and recently her actor boyfriend Adam Shulman was arrested for theft of a painting. But she doesn't seem to let her romantic trials get her down, saying her mantra is an Oscar Wilde quote, which also helps her guard her personal life: "The less said about life's sores, the better." And how could she possibly be blue when her career is flourishing? "At the end of the day, whatever goes wrong I can't even focus on it, because it always comes back to 'I'm the luckiest girl on planet Earth,'" she recently said.

—Marissa Stapley-Ponikowski

The Up-and-Comer

Leighton MEESTER

From rags to riches, Leighton Meester has risen up through the Hollywood ranks thanks to a starring role on Gossip Girl as Blair Waldorf—a stint that's helped the young star move from the small screen to the big screen.

Moving from Florida to New York at age 11 to pursue acting, Meester got an early crack at stardom when she began modeling and finding small roles on shows like Law & Order, Boston Public and Entourage.

In recent years, Meester has ascended to the big-screen through a versatile set of roles—from teen dramas (Remember The Daze, 2007), to horrors (Killer Movie, 2008) to comedies (Date Night, 2010). Along with her successful jump to film, Meester has become a surprise singing sensation, with an upcoming album scheduled for next year, and has snagged a beauty contract with Herbal Essences shampoo. “I think embracing your natural beauty is the best thing. I take really good care of my hair and that starts in the shower. I really like Herbal Essences Dazzle and Shine and Beautiful Ends—both of those lines are good for keeping my hair healthy, strong and shiny,” Meester recently said.

Next up for Meester is Country Strong with Gwyneth Paltow (for which she also showcases her singing abilities), and in next year's The Roommate and Monte Carlo. In The Roommate, she plays Rebecca, an unstable college student dangerously obsessed with her roommate (Alyson Michalka). She also stars alongside Selena Gomez and Katie Cassidy in the Valentine's Day release Monte Carlo, a romantic comedy set in France. Monte Carlo follows a trio of girls on a Paris vacation that is turned upside down when one of them is mistaken for a rich heiress, leading the ladies into a dream world of paparazzi, private jets and couture gowns—not far off from Meester's own real life.

—Dan Blackwell

“This is the best life that I could ask for, and it's more than I thought it could be. I remember looking through magazines or watching movies thinking, 'I really want to be part of that.'”

The Sophisticated Beauty

Diane KRUGER

Always a performer, Diane Kruger originally studied ballet in London before an injury put an end to her dancing career. She then saw success with modeling before dedicating herself to becoming an actress. Eight years after making the switch, she's proven she's got the talent to match her looks.

Since getting noticed as the leading lady Helen in Troy, she's landed high profile roles in the National Treasure movies, and in Quentin Tarantino's Inglourious Basterds. On top of that, she's the face of Calvin Klein Beauty. She's also the lucky girl that gets to go home with Canadian cutie Joshua Jackson, her boyfriend since 2006.

Next up, we'll see her alongside Liam Neeson in Unknown, in which she plays Gina, the young woman who helps a man who recently recovered from a coma reclaim his identity. As she continues to excel in her career, it's clear that she's passionate about her craft. Her roles continue to change and evolve, and she leaves everyone wanting to see what's next. "I do think that's why I love acting...it's being someone that you're not. And sometimes you're really scared of it, and then once you let yourself go there, it's the best thing ever."

—Katharine Watts

“With modeling, you pose. You want to look your best all the time. With acting, you have to be aware of the camera, but the more you show your imperfections, the better you're going to be.”

The Comedy Queen

Cameron DIAZ

With the tall-blonde-blue-eyed-leggy thing that she's got going on, it's not hard to see how Cameron Diaz got her start as a model. In combination with her goofy personality and good humor, she's the perfect leading lady.

Her lucky break came when she landed the lead role alongside Jim Carrey in The Mask, after which she worked on a few low budget films before starring in My Best Friend's Wedding and There's Something About Mary, which made her a household name. Now, as the voice of Fiona in the Shrek movies, more serious roles in Gangs of New York and My Sister's Keeper, and a record-breaking paycheck as the third highest-paid actress in Hollywood (behind Sandra Bullock and Reese Witherspoon), it's safe to say Cameron has come a long way since landing the role that started it all.

In her upcoming role alongside funnyman Seth Rogan in The Green Hornet, she'll play the sexy secretary and lead female part, Lenore Case. With her killer bod, A-list resume and baseball player boyfriend (NY Yankee Alex Rodriguez), it seems that the beautiful and talented Diaz is simply blessed, but she doesn't take it for granted. As she told W Magazine, "My life isn't perfect. I have my struggles; everybody does.

But I want to appreciate all of the amazing things in my life. People should have the right to be happy."

—Katharine Watts

“I believe that fame makes you become who you are more clearly. When all the doors are open for you, you have to set boundaries for yourself. If you don't have a good upbringing, the danger is that you'll take advantage of those limitless opportunities.”

127 HOURS

November 5 Drama

James Franco, Lizzy Caplan

In May 2003 young American outdoorsman Aron Ralston (Franco) took a leisurely hike into the Utah wilderness, only to find himself in a race for survival after he becomes pinned under a fallen boulder. As days pass, and with help nowhere to be found, Ralston is confronted with a harrowing decision: lose his arm or lose his life.

DUE DATE

November 5 Comedy

Robert Downey Jr., Zach Galifianakis, Jamie Foxx

Soon-to-be-dad Peter Highman (Downey Jr.) has one goal: to get home in time to witness the birth of his baby. Partnered with fellow traveler Ethan Tremblay (Galifianakis), Peter discovers that getting from point A to point B may be a little more trouble than expected, as the two encounter a car-crunching, nerve-mangling cross-country road trip from hell.

FAIR GAME

November 5 Drama

Naomi Watts, Sean Penn

After her husband (Penn) writes a New York Times article about the Bush administration's manipulation of the intelligence behind Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, CIA agent Valerie Plame (Watts) is publicly exposed in a government leak. Now, with her cover blown and the press on her doorstep, Plame is forced to fight for her career and salvage her marriage while exposing Washington's corrupt corridors of power.

MEGAMIND

November 5 Comedy

Will Ferrell, Brad Pitt, Tina Fey, Jonah Hill

Dastardly super-villain Megamind (Ferrell) has spent a lifetime trying to conquer caped super hero Metro Man (Pitt), until one day it works, and Metro Man is accidentally killed. With no purpose left in life, Megamind creates a new super hero to battle, Titan (Hill), who turns out to be a worse evil-genius than Megamind ever was. Called upon to rescue earth for the first time, Megamind is now forced to do the unthinkable: step up and become the hero.

BURLESQUE

Monsters

In Monsters, first-time director Gareth Edwards takes a stab at the monster movie genre, and kicks things up a notch by filming it guerilla style, and on a low budget.

The story is set six years after a NASA probe—carrying samples of possible alien life—crashes over Central America. But when new life begins to form, half of Mexico becomes quarantined and deemed as the “Infected Zone.” When US journalist (Scoot McNairy) agrees to escort a shaken tourist (Whitney Able) through the infected zone in order to get home, they do all they can to survive to get to the US Border.

Tribute’s Toni-Marie Ippolito spoke to writer/director Edwards, and actors McNairy and Able (who are married in real life), about what it was like filming without a script, the alien creatures and the challenges of filming in Mexico.

What’s so cool about this movie is that you shot in on the fly. Was this always your intention?

Edwards: Part of the reason for doing it was to try and do it very guerilla, and very low budget, and prove that you don’t need that much money to make something look like it got a lot of money involved. It was always my goal to finance my own film and shoot something with a domestic camera, and stick in visual effects. I thought it would take about a year to get in and edit that, and it took about a decade!

As actors, were you guys worried about this filming style?

Able: I was excited about this adventure. The guerilla style of filmmaking was exciting and then I got really nervous when we got down there and realized there was a total loss of control, which is scary for an actor.

McNairy: The idea of going down to Mexico and just shooting a film on the fly...my thoughts were, ‘Hmmm... filming in Mexico, travelling around, near-death experiences... I’m in!’

You also didn’t have a script in place. Was that a challenge?

Edwards: We had a scene by scene outline, so basically we had a file of facts, because we were in the middle of the jungle, so laptops don’t actually last that long, so we had these blue and black pages. The black pages were physical things that happened to the characters and the blue were emotional things we learn about them. We would drive along in a van, and we would see something really cool in the middle of Central America, and we would drive out and we would go, “OK what scene can we do here?” and I would shoot it a bit like a documentary.

The cast would do whatever it wanted, and I would dare them sometimes. I wouldn’t say “action” or “cut.” I would start rolling. I feel the performances we got from everybody was natural. It just felt like it was really happening and it was a real place.

McNairy: Shooting without a script is very demanding on the actor. You can’t rehearse, because there’s nothing to rehearse! The only thing we could do was work on our character’s backstories, and just keep layering it as we went along.

Did you guys get to see a sketch of what the monsters would look like?

McNairy: Once we did see them, it was how Gareth had explained them—being bioluminescent. He sent us the James Cameron documentary Aliens of the Deep and he said, “I want them to look like this.” When we saw them, we thought, “Wow, he really nailed it on the head. The creatures look amazing.”

Would you say there is a twist in this movie?

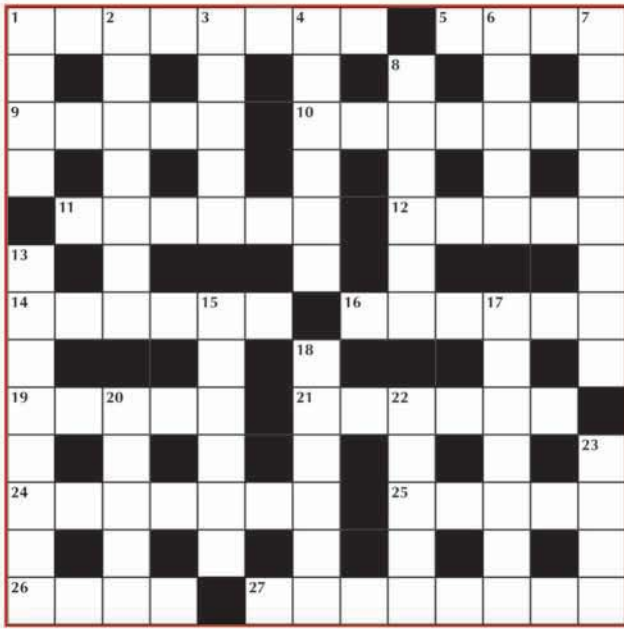

Able: Well, I wouldn’t say it’s a “twist.” I think the key thing is for people to keep their eyes open from the start of the movie until the end.

HAMMER'S MUSIC BLOG

Here we are, fast approaching a new year. And looking back, 2010 was a great year in music...but there are still a few HOT albums to drop before we hit 2011.

Two that come to mind are Rihanna's "Loud" and Akon's "Stadium." Rihanna and Akon are movers and shakers in the music world. They are both young, hip and set music trends. Whether it's working with other artists, crossing over to a different genre or sampling classic tracks—these are two remarkably innovative and talented artists.

So far, we've only heard samples from these new albums with their singles "Only Girl" by Rihanna and "Angel" from Akon. You never truly know what you're going to get song after song, but one thing is certain, you're going to get massive hits!

The Hammer is Music Director and Assistant Program Director of Z103.5. He can be heard on-air every weekday from 3-7pm.

HOROSCOPE

ANNE HATHAWAY - Scorpio, born November 12, 1982, Brooklyn, NY
If Anne's delicate, ethereal beauty seems lightweight for a Scorpio, blame it on a moon in Libra. It is the sign of the princess and beauty queen, and helped her shine in her roles in The Princess Diaries movies and The Devil Wears Prada. But there are sexy undercurrents, as she has four planets in Scorpio. Remember the racy photo scandal of 2008 when she was dating bad-boy Raffaello Follieri now in jail for fraud? True to her sign, she has emotional depth and is much more intense than she lets on. Into 2011, expect to see her taking new directions, including exploiting her singing talent. A wedding is not out of the question, and she'll definitely want more creative control over the projects she takes on.

STAR STRUCK

What the stars have planned for you

November ●

ARIES (March 21 – April 20)

There's a strong sense of swimming with the financial tide. For the first half of the month, the cash flows in a direction that pleases you, and a promising offer may surface around the full moon. Meanwhile, there's plenty of action on the romance set. Expect exciting re-writes to the close-up scenes from the 18th on.

TAURUS (April 21 – May 21)

Take shelter from life's storms early in the month. The safest refuges are also your favorites: love and money, from the 8th on. By the 18th, Venus smoothes the way in every area of your life. Everyone around you, from your boss to your bank manager, is easily charmed so speak up about your needs and wants.

GEMINI (May 22 – June 21)

The script just won't gel. Should the plotline involve putting in overtime to prove yourself at work or party hearty? A very warm and enticing romance could tempt you around the 18th. But it's also an optimal time to move up a rung on the ladder. Your best bet is moderation in all things, and don't neglect your health.

CANCER (June 22 – July 22)

The spotlight is on your love life. If you're not looking, you'll use other excuses to get out and mingle. Between the 6th and the 21st a potential co-star could appear who will know all the right lines. It's chaos on the set late in the month. Read between the lines in any scenario presented you by relatives or other loved ones until the 18th.

LEO (July 23 – August 23)

Curb your ad-libs, as an off-the-cuff remark could be more cutting than intended. But do give voice to the creative solutions that strike you from the 18th on. That's when a cycle of delightful socializing kicks off, too, and the party is wherever you are. Most will occur at home base, where you also have the urge to decorate.

VIRGO (August 24 – September 23)

Everyone around you is locked in indecisive mode until the 18th. Hold off until then to ask for a raise, launch a project or make a major purchase. A love scene around the 21st leaves you longing for a retake. With a little effort, you'll get a second chance to make your feelings known.

LIBRA (September 24 – October 23)

You're writing – and re-writing – several love scenes until the 18th. Enjoy the dreamy scenario, but don't take anything too seriously. That's when you finally begin to make good financial headway as well. Just remember to give all that comes your way a reality check before going into production.

SCORPIO (October 24 – November 22)

You're in for a month relatively free of the make-or-break situations that are your forte. Expect to catch a financial break by the 21st. Not enough spice in the screenplay? Love is sweet, if less than thrilling, late in the month. More promising prospects soon appear, as you attract all sorts of people then.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 – December 21)

You're all fired up with no particular place to go. With Mars in your sign, though, take it easy as you're unusually accident-prone. Until the 18th it's best to stick to the schedule and work on that to-do list. You're on everyone's A-list from the 18th on. Make the most of all opportunities to mingle and feast.

CAPRICORN (December 22 – January 20)

Practice diplomacy and etiquette on the job, and plan your big move for after the 18th. Venus acts as your agent, and you could catch a lucky break. Around the 21st a tabloid-worthy romance could begin. Think carefully before getting involved in anything that could lead to gossip and speculation, though.

AQUARIUS (January 21 – February 18)

With most of the planets outside, you could just coast all month. But if you make a push, you could land a very nice new job offer or assignment. Relationships get back on track from the 18th on, and you could add to that bulging contacts list. The passion quotient soars around the 21st, then becomes sweet and serene.

PISCES (February 19 – March 20)

Your head is in the clouds, full of wishes and dreams. Come down to earth and put on your running shoes. You could be first across the finish line at work or top the list for a promotion. Romance takes unexpected turns all month, and many promises will be revised. All relationships ease after the 18th.

Channeling Marilyn

Many actresses have played her, and many artists have been inspired to look like her. There's no doubt that even fifty years after her death in 1962, Marilyn Monroe still exudes a level of mystery and intrigue, just as she did when she was at the height of her career.

In the upcoming My Week With Marilyn, one of Hollywood's newest blonde bombshells is tackling the role of this Hollywood legend: Michelle Williams.

With filming just underway, the story is not a biography based on Marilyn's life, but features a parallel story about a summer trip she took to London, England.

The film adapts the diaries of 23-year-old Colin Clark, a set assistant, who showed Marilyn Monroe around London during the summer of 1956 while she worked on the film The Prince and the Showgirl—the film that famously united Sir Laurence Olivier and Monroe, who also happened to be on her honeymoon with her new husband, playwright Arthur Miller.

Other stars that have copied Monroe's iconic look are Madonna, Angelina Jolie (in Life or Something Like It) and Naomi Watts—who is set to play the star in the upcoming film Blonde. Go to tribute.ca and tell us who your favorite Marilyn Monroe look-a-like is.
