High from Heigl

I loved the last cover with Katherine Heigl! She's so beautiful and such a talented actress. I can't wait for the next season of Grey's Anatomy and I love that you dished the juicy details of the upcoming season, but I was a little disappointed that there wasn't an article about her in the magazine. I want more Heigl!

TV returns!

I loved your Fall TV preview in September's issue. I missed all my favorite shows so much last year when they ended early because of the writers' strike, but now I'm so excited for them to come back! Heroes and Lost look like they'll be the best seasons yet, and I can't wait for 90210—I just hope it lives up to the original.

—Jennifer M.

Good to be green

Thanks for featuring SIGG bottles in your last A-list section. These bottles are a great alternative to plastic and I think it's awesome that famous people like Julia Roberts and Gisele Bündchen are using their celebrity status to spread the word about using environmentally friendly products like aluminum bottles. I hope you continue to feature trendy green items!

Dane Cook's a hit

Thanks for the spotlight on Dane Cook. He's so underappreciated as a comedian, but he really is today's best stand up comic. All of his CDs are hilarious and his movies are sooo funny! I love that he's starring with Kate Hudson in My Best Friend's Girl—those two are great together!

Tribute love

I think your magazine is excellent. One of my favorite parts about going to the theater is reading the newest issue of Tribute before the movie starts. It's great getting the latest celebrity gossip in Scoop and having a sneak peak at all the new movies in Previews. My favorite section is definitely Sex Degrees—who knew Hollywood could be so incestuous?

packages. Just 15mm thin, the improved Cyber-shot features a large 3-inch, 16 x 9 touch panel LCD screen, updated intelligent scene recognition technology, and is available in five brilliant colors.

The Secret Life of Bees

By Sue Monk Kidd

Penguin, $16.50

A New York Times bestseller, The Secret Life of Bees follows 14-year-old Lily Owens as she travels to South Carolina and encounters a trio of beekeeping sisters who change her life forever. The novel has been adapted for the big screen and can be seen this month with a star-studded cast including Dakota Fanning, Alicia Keys, Jennifer Hudson and Queen Latifah.

Gauntlet

(NDS) $29.99

Liv Tyler can't get enough of her Nintendo DS and we bet she'll love playing Gauntlet, the modern reworking of the classic fantasy arcade game from Midway. With its voice communication capability and four-player Wi-Fi mode, players can even join forces to battle all that is evil with their friends online.

High School Musical 3 Soundtrack

Disney $27.99

The latest soundtrack in the HSM franchise promises to please with the same fun, sweet, can't-help-but-sing-along mix of tracks from the highly anticipated film. With upbeat dance songs like "I Want It All" to romantic duets like "Right Here, Right Now," the High School Musical 3 soundtrack gets kids (and parents) amped up for the big screen counterpart. Released three days before the film hits theatres, the soundtrack provides just enough time to commit all those lyrics to memory.

Toronto International Film Festival

This year, the Toronto International Film Festival was as star-studded as ever. From Brad Pitt to Anne Hathaway to Jennifer Aniston, the stars walked the red carpet to promote their exciting new films. For more celebrity scoop on what these stars had to say, log on to tribute.ca!

Julianne Moore was happy to discuss her film Blindness, which has garnered a lot of buzz since its premiere at Cannes earlier this year.

Jennifer Aniston leaves the hotel after doing press for her film Management, in which she plays a traveling saleswoman who sells cheap art to small companies and motels. Aniston told Tribute that this film was a “labor of love” and that she had an “amazing time” working with her co-star Steve Zahn.

Ben Barnes, Jessica Biel and Colin Firth were all smiles at the premiere of their film Easy Virtue. In the film, Biel marries an Englishman on the spur of the moment (Barnes) whose mother (Kristin Scott Thomas) becomes the mother-in-law from hell. Biel told Tribute that it's always nerve-wracking when first meeting the boyfriend's parents. Hmmm... perhaps it's life imitating art?

Adrien Brody didn't let a rainy day get in the way of exploring the city. Brody plays a con man in the upcoming film The Brothers Bloom, costarring Rachel Weisz and Mark Ruffalo.

In town to promote a documentary about her life, Paris, Not France, Paris Hilton hit up many of the TIFF parties with her beau Benji Madden as well as the swag lounges. Buzz about the doc hit the streets when all screenings but one were canceled. Director Adria Petty, daughter of Tom Petty, told Tribute that it wasn't a publicity stunt but due to threats of piracy.

Sir Ben Kingsley and Jim Sturgess attended a press conference for their film Fifty Dead Men Walking.

Kate Beckinsale signs autographs for fans. The gorgeous Brit was here to promote her movie, Nothing But The Truth, in which she plays a female reporter who faces a possible jail sentence for outing a CIA agent and refusing to reveal her source.

Fans screamed for Canadian star Rachel McAdams, who attended the premiere of her film The Lucky Ones.

Viggo Mortensen and Renée Zellweger came out to support their film Appaloosa, directed by Ed Harris.

The beautiful Thandie Newton showed girl power amidst a cast of men in RocknRolla.

Keira Knightley, who stars in the upcoming film The Duchess, opted for an elegant floor length dress over the usual period garments she's been donning in her films lately.

Angelina JOLIE

Motherhood is a role Angelina Jolie knows all too well. Just three months after giving birth to twins Knox Leon and Vivienne Marcheline, the mother of six will appear on the big screen in Changeling, playing a single mother to a nine-year-old boy. While in real life, Jolie shares parenting duties with Brad Pitt, it wasn't always the way. After her 2002 split from Billy Bob Thornton, Jolie assumed sole custody of their son Maddox. Until that point, she says she didn't have much of a maternal instinct. "I never had children around me growing up," she recently said. "I didn't even know how to hold a child. I had a child in a film and I was terrified of it!" Now, six years later, she's a natural. She says, "I love being a mom. That is where I belong and what really feels right for me."

Still, playing a mother on the big screen isn't what one of the world's most beautiful actresses is best known for. From video-game adventurer (the Lara Croft series) to married hired gun (in

Jolie desperately tries to find her missing son

Mr. & Mrs. Smith) to assassin in the recently released Wanted, Jolie is a favorite in dangerous, sexy roles. With 40 films on her resume, she has played a wide range of roles that have so far garnered her four Golden Globes, two SAGs, an Oscar and dozens of nominations, including two Emmy nods.

Now, in this period piece (it's set in the Roaring Twenties), Jolie plays Christine Collins, a single working mother whose prayers are answered when her kidnapped son is returned to her. But amidst the chaos of the media-crazed reunion, she realizes the son is not hers. The scenario would be a nightmare for any mother, but knowing the movie is based on true events made it even more difficult to play. Jolie recently said that the difference when making a film based on a true story is that typically, "The pressure is wondering what the audience is going to take out of it. It's very different when you feel the story represents a family you want to honor."

Still, it wouldn't have been Jolie's first stab at a story based on true events. In 1998, she played the lead role in the HBO film Gia, which chronicled the life of heroin-addicted model Gia Carangi, who at the age of 26 became one of the first celebrities to die of AIDS. The next year, Jolie stole the spotlight and garnered an Oscar for her supporting role as the sociopathic runaway patient in Girl, Interrupted.

But initially, Jolie was reluctant to take on the role of a mother of a kidnapped child. She'd just completed filming on A Mighty Heart, in which she gave a heartrending portrayal of Mariane Pearl, whose husband, journalist Daniel Pearl, was kidnapped and executed while Mariane was pregnant with their first child. In real life, the role hit close to home for Jolie, who was pregnant with Shiloh at the time. While Christine Collins is a woman that Jolie said she "came to admire," as an actor, there was a lot about the story that made her uncomfortable. "I didn't want to do a film about a child being kidnapped, because I think there's something about bringing certain things into your environment, in your thoughts and in your world. But ultimately, it was her strength when faced with such odds that swayed me. I'm most fond of this story because of how it exposes corruption of those in power. It's very timely; we still deal with that today."

The film, produced by Ron Howard and Brian Grazer, quickly attracted Clint Eastwood on board as director, who read the script on a plane to Berlin and immediately liked it. When the producers told Eastwood that Jolie had agreed, he was pleased. "I like her work a lot," said Eastwood, who also directed her in The Good Shepherd. Everyone involved agreed that the unbelievable events would make a captivating film, especially with Jolie on board, who made it her life's mission to find her boy. "Angelina is unique," said Eastwood. "She reminds me a lot of the actresses from the Golden Age of movies in the 1940s: Katharine Hepburn, Bette Davis, Ingrid Bergman, Susan Hayward. They were all very distinctive, and they all had a lot of presence. She's a tremendous actress."

—Chantel Simmons

Since the film's premiere at Cannes, Jolie's performance has generated Oscar buzz

Rachel McADAMS

Change, for some, can be a scary word. But for the ever-transforming Rachel McAdams, it's an everyday necessity. "It's a compulsion. I'm always changing parts of me. Even when I was young, I wanted to change my hair color...Even my handwriting changes regularly," she told the New York Times. This need for change makes McAdams' diverse choice in roles no surprise. She's gone from playing a blonde hot chick to an even blonder mean girl to a brunette wedding crasher. However, this Canadian sweetheart is so much more than her evolving hair color.

Growing up in rural Ontario, McAdams had grand inspirations of acting in movies. "It would have been too big of a dream to say you want to go to Hollywood. But, secretly, I think I always knew," she explained. After starring in the small Canadian film Perfect Pie, McAdams got her first taste of Hollywood in 2002's The Hot Chick, which quickly led to her breakout role as Regina George in Mean Girls. Playing the teen queen bee opposite Lindsay Lohan put McAdams on the map, but it was her next role as lovable Allie Hamilton in the oh-so-romantic The Notebook that catapulted this small-town beauty to super-stardom.

Following the success of The Notebook, and her high-profile relationship with co-star Ryan Gosling, McAdams soon found herself being handed scripts. Instead of auditioning for roles, she was now being offered sought-after parts in a long list of star-studded films including Wedding Crashers, Red Eye and The Family Stone.

A true Canadian, McAdams was intent on not letting the success of Hollywood get to her and took a brief hiatus to put everything in perspective. "I don't like to work all the time. When I'm working, the rest of my life slips away," she told the New York Times. "I press pause on everything, and then, when I'm done working, I get back to the world I'm trying to interpret in the movies."

Luckily for us, McAdams has paused her life once again for her next film, The Lucky Ones, co-starring Tim Robbins. The film centers around three soldiers who return home from fighting in Iraq, only to find that "home" isn't quite what they remembered. "When I first read the script, I didn't get my character and I found that interesting. She had such a mishmash of qualities—one minute she's a hellcat and the next she's so sensitive. I liked that sense of complication," she explained.

Seems like the perfect role for the "always changing" McAdams.

Nicole KIDMAN

Nicole is a thoroughbred," says director Baz Luhrmann to Vogue. Luhrmann would know. He's directed Kidman in numerous films including Moulin Rouge, and has become one of her dearest friends. "She is highly strung, highly volatile, highly everything." Those qualities were apparently needed to play the role of the aristocratic Lady Sarah in his upcoming epic film Australia, also starring another Aussie native, Hugh Jackman.

Kidman and Jackman play the perfect Aussie love birds

Although she was born in Honolulu, Hawaii, Kidman's parents moved their family to Sydney when she was very young. By the time the statuesque, wildly curly red-haired star hit her teens she was ready for stardom. After a few stints on Australian television, Kidman's breakthrough in Hollywood was with Days of Thunder, in which she also snagged, and married, one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors, Tom Cruise. But she was determined to make her mark on her own merits—which soon followed in the form of a fame-crazed housewife determined to eliminate any obstacle in her path in Gus Van Sant's To Die For (1995). She later solidified her status as one of Hollywood's most in-demand actresses when she won the Best Actress Oscar for her portrayal of Virginia Woolf in The Hours.

As Kidman's career has evolved, so has her personal life. Already a mother to her adopted children Isabella and Connor, whom she shares with ex-husband Cruise, she recently gave birth to daughter Sunday Rose with her country music star husband Keith Urban, who also happens to be a fellow Australian.

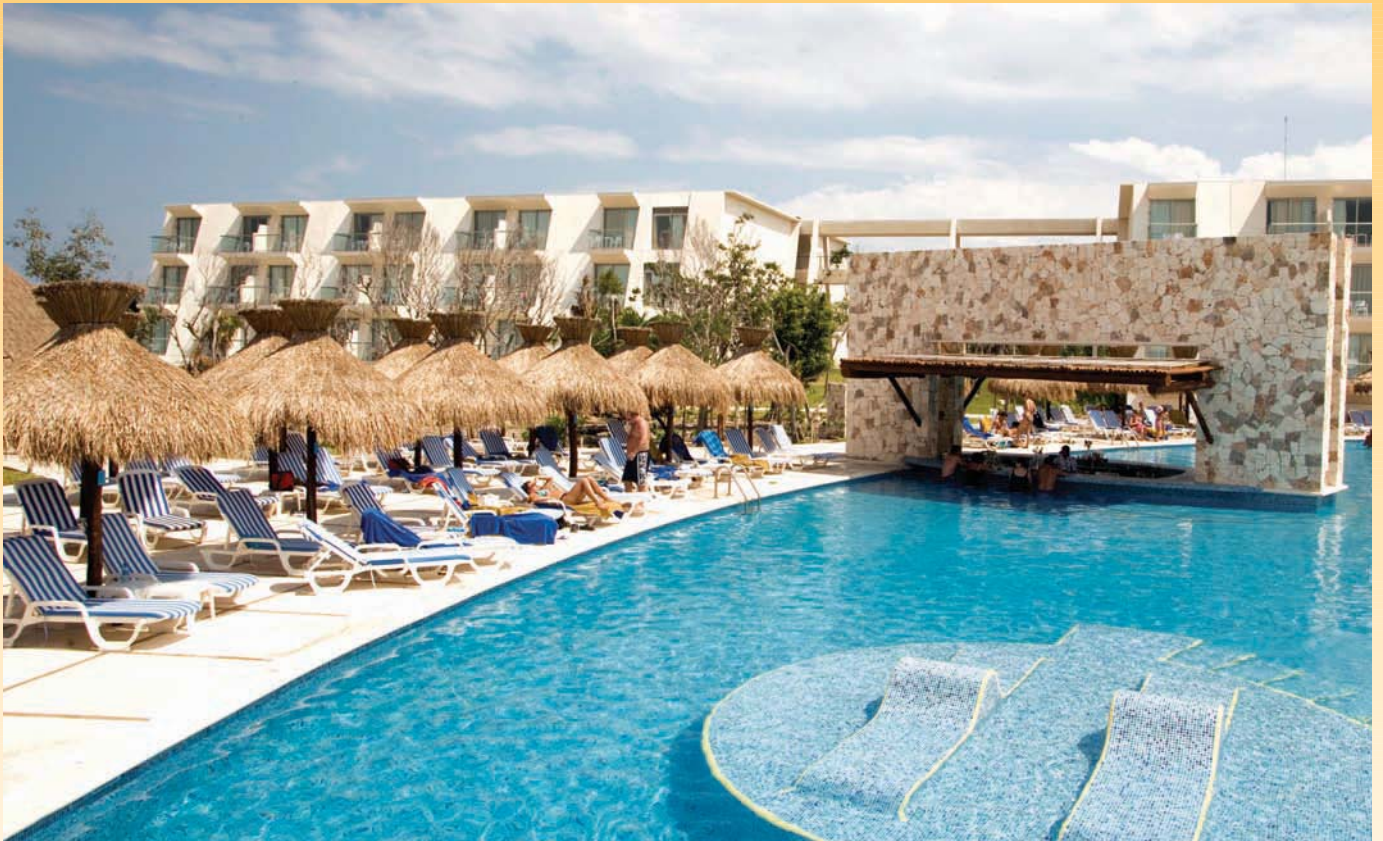

Kidman gets down and dirty to save cattle

It's only befitting that this Hollywood icon would return to her roots in an epic way with Australia. Set in northern Australia prior to World War II, the film tells the story of an English aristocrat (Kidman) who inherits a ranch the size of Maryland. When English cattle barons plot to take her land, she joins forces with a cattle driver (Jackman) to drive 2000 head of cattle across hundreds of miles of the country's most unforgiving land, only to still face the bombing of Darwin, Australia by the Japanese forces that had attacked Pearl Harbor only months earlier.

"It's the roughest thing I ever had to go through," Kidman says about filming. "The heat was debilitating. I was sitting on a horse once and I remember thinking, Gosh, this is what it feels like before you faint—and then I fainted." Although Kidman found out she was pregnant during shooting, that didn't stop her from roughing it out in the wilderness. "There was another time we flew in by helicopter to the Salt Flats—it was like a moonscape, there was just nothing there—and we got caught in a dust storm so bad we couldn't even see. Everybody lived out there for five days in these little silver tents. It was great. That's the adventure. That's why you make movies. It's the equivalent of The African Queen, where they were out in the wilderness and Katharine Hepburn was washing her hair with a bucket. We all want that experience."

Scarlett JOHANSSON

Few would have guessed, when Scarlett Johansson played the young Grace MacLean in 1998's The Horse Whisperer, that she would later take Hollywood by storm and become a prized face in the movie industry. Though Johansson had been in six films before The Horse Whisperer, it was her role as a young girl in that picture (she was 13 at the time), opposite and directed by Robert Redford, that garnered her industry recognition and credibility as well as a Young Star Award.

But it wasn't until Johansson appeared in Lost in Translation that moviegoers and Hollywood realized her star power. In 2003 she starred in Girl With a Pearl Earring, and quickly became Woody Allen's muse after starring in three of his films: Match Point, Scoop and Vicky Cristina Barcelona.

The New York native has played more than actress with her fame and her face. After a two-year contract representing Calvin Klein fragrances, making a reported $1 million per year, Johansson signed on with L'Oréal as a spokesmodel in January of 2006. It is said that her four-year contract with the cosmetics giant will put $3 million in her pocket every year. But it hasn't been all roses for Johansson's career. The sometimes singer (she sang a version of The Pretenders' "Brass in Pocket" on the Lost in Translation soundtrack) released her debut album earlier this year to the disappointment of both critics and fans. Her album, Anywhere I Lay My Head, reached its highest position on The Billboard 200 chart at #126 in June, 2008, a mere two weeks after its release.

Fortunately, all is not lost in Johansson's translation of life. She announced her engagement earlier this year to Canadian beefcake Ryan Reynolds, and is continuing what she does best: acting. Johansson's latest film, The Spirit, opens the actress to a new genre. Based on the comic strip following a crime fighter known as The Spirit (who fights bad guys in a business suit, red tie and fedora—what else?), the flick, which also stars Samuel L. Jackson and Eva Mendes, is most anticipated for its graphics and special effects.

The director is famed comic writer and director Frank Miller, whose 300 and Sin City films fast became visual legends. Johansson says she's excited to be on the project. "Working with Frank Miller was so exciting for me! He's so wonderful," Johansson told film.com. "He's such a visionary. Literally, he'll lead you through the storyboard he's drawn out and everybody gets excited about the next shot. Then, working with Sam Jackson, whom I love and always admired. He's so great to work with. I mean, what a co-star! I loved playing such a big character. The dialogue is so black and white. As an actor, it's nice to play all of these different things."

Hathaway in Rachel Getting Married

Hathaway puts on a dynamite performance in Passengers

When Anne Hathaway broke onto the big screen (after a brief stint on a short-lived television program called Get Real) with her leading role in The Princess Diaries, she immediately gained attention starring opposite screen legend Julie Andrews in her breakout role, at the age of 18.

With star style direct from Old Hollywood and reminiscent of classic beauties such as Audrey Hepburn and Grace Kelly, Hathaway (even her name sounds über-ladylike and regal) stood out on the red carpet from Day One. More than just a pretty face, the actress catapulted to A-list Hollywood status when she landed the leading role in The Devil Wears Prada.

Hathaway worked alongside acting veteran Meryl Streep in the flick about life in the oft-crazy New York fashion magazine biz. Hathaway's character, Andy Sachs, plays executive assistant (read: coffee fetcher and coat hanger-upper) to Meryl Streep's Miranda Priestly, a softened interpretation of the notorious Vogue editrix Anna Wintour.

But Hathaway has graced the glossies for more than just her talent. Her fashion sense has garnered many headlines on its own, and she recently became the face of the Lancôme fragrance Magnifique. And Hathaway's most public romance, a four-year relationship with Italian property developer Raffaello Follieri, came to a climactic halt just before Follieri was arrested for charges of fraud following a very public lawsuit.

After starring in comedies recently, including Get Smart with Steve Carell, Hathaway will dive into the dramatic pool, beginning with a dark portrayal in the indie film Rachel Getting Married and the upcoming thriller Passengers. In Passengers, Hathaway plays therapist Claire Summers, who counsels survivors of a plane crash. Opposite hunky Patrick Wilson, who plays her patient Eric, Hathaway finds herself caught in a mystery as her clients begin to disappear. Of course, there's a budding on-screen should-we-or-shouldn't-we romance between Hathaway and Wilson's character.

ELIZABETH BANKS

Elizabeth Banks could just be one of Hollywood's most well-behaved starlets. Just ask her yourself. "When I was in college I was accused of being a goody two-shoes," she has said. "But every goody two-shoes has a bad side." With roles that have varied from First Lady to a sex-crazed bookseller, Banks has certainly proven her theory.

Married to her college sweetheart in real life, this blonde bombshell's wholesome charm and irresistible good looks have landed her bit parts in notable films like Surrender Dorothy and Wet Hot American Summer, as well as guest roles on hit TV shows such as Sex and the City and Law and Order: Special Victims Unit. But, even though her resume quickly grew to include a long list of films starring opposite Hollywood heavyweights, such as Leonardo DiCaprio (Catch Me If You Can), Tobey Maguire (Spider-Man) and Samuel L. Jackson (Shaft), it wasn't until 2005's Seabiscuit that Banks finally broke onto the A-list scene.

Soon after the release of Seabiscuit, Banks found herself in demand for the first time in her career. The up-and-coming "It" girl reprised her role as Miss Brant in the Spider-Man sequels and landed parts in a string of blockbuster hits, including The 40 Year-Old Virgin, Invincible and Slither. But, for TV fans, she's best known as Dr. Kim Briggs on the NBC sitcom Scrubs.

The self-professed goody two-shoes will finally get to prove that she has a (somewhat) bad side in the upcoming Zack and Miri Make a Porno. But, it's the ironic juxtaposition of this film with her next role as a young Laura Bush in the George Bush biopic W that has people talking. "I think the controversy is coming out of the fact that we're making the movie while he's still in office," she told Entertainment Weekly. "But I really think if this movie were made 20 years later, it would stand up."

Banks as Laura Bush

While the pending contention over the film is definitely on her mind, she is much more focused on her portrayal of Laura Bush. "I really fell in love with Laura Bush," Banks admitted to Tribute's Toni-Marie Ippolito. "Everyone has to find a connection with the character they're playing no matter how good or bad." In order to get into character, Banks immersed herself in the Bush culture. "I watched a lot of videos, read bios and downloaded a lot of podcasts of her. I just tried to make my best guess as to how she handled the situations I'm portraying in the movie."

Even amidst the controversy one thing's for sure: when it comes to impressing viewers, she doesn't need to worry. Banks does admit that she hopes the First Lady will see the film. "I hope she sneaks a peek," Banks says. "I hope I got her essence right."

Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa

NOVEMBER 7

In Madagascar: The Crate Escape, our favorite zoo animals Alex the Lion (Ben Stiller), Marty the Zebra (Chris Rock), Gloria the Hippo (Jada Pinkett-Smith) and Melman the Giraffe (David Schwimmer) find out what it's like to rough it in the wild, in their homeland of Madagascar, Africa. In the upcoming sequel, the New Yorkers crash onto the vast plains of Africa, where the zoo-raised crew encounter species of their own kind for the very first time. Ben Stiller, Chris Rock and Jada Pinkett Smith gave Toni-Marie Ippolito the scoop as to what we can expect this time around.

Marty was quite a sassy zebra in the first version. What can we expect from him this time? Can you reveal anything for us?

Rock: He's getting, you know, more in touch with his inner zebra! He's home and he hangs out with a lot more of his zebra pals and he's a little more of a militant zebra now.

Does Marty sing?

Rock: Yes, of course he sings! Come on! There's been three High School Musicals since this movie came out. He better sing.

What can we expect from Alex this time around?

Stiller: The animals come back to Africa and Alex is meeting his parents for the first time and his dad who doesn't understand who he is.

He doesn't really get what it means to be the King of New York, you know, or Central Park Zoo, because they've been living in the wild and it's all about proving yourself as a lion in the Pride. So for Alex, his dad realizes that his son's a dancer and not a fighter.

So can we expect some great entertaining numbers from Alex the lion?

Stiller: I do a little bit of group singing but really I think what you get is a little bit more dancing from Alex in this one. Alex is extremely good at dancing in animated movies. Much better than in live action film!

I guess you've honed your skills in this area?

Stiller: Yes, I've honed that skill, animated dancing where you cannot be seen.

What do you think kids or adults will get out of this movie?

Pinkett Smith: This particular film reflects the commitment to the process of relationships. You see that happen with our characters in this particular movie. They go through a lot with each other and it's not always good, but they stick in there until it gets right.

Can you reveal if Gloria the Hippo finds love?

Pinkett-Smith: Hmm...Does Gloria find love? Yes, I think you'll see an interesting and very unique love story in this one!

City of Ember

OCTOBER 10

Bill Murray, Tim Robbins, Toby Jones, Saoirse Ronan

For generations, the people of the City of Ember have flourished in an amazing world of glittering lights. But when Ember's once-powerful generator starts to fail, two teenagers race against time to unlock the ancient mystery of the city's existence, and help the citizens escape before the lights go out forever.

The entire team grieves for their fallen friend while unknown to them the killer, the Undersheriff, investigates the murder. Also an old friend returns when they hear the news.

Life on Mars

OCTOBER 9

Cast: Jason O'Mara

Life on Mars revolves around Sam Tyler (O'Mara), a modern-day police detective who, after a car crash, mysteriously finds himself transported back to 1973 and still working as a detective.

ARIES (MAR 21 - APR 20)

Quiet on the set! There's much shifting of scenery now, which brings you no peace. Go with the erratic flow, and make some necessary adjustments in your main relationship by the 14th. Late in the month, show how good you are at taking direction. Being a team player will pay off in a raise or promotion.

TAURUS (APR 21 - MAY 21)

The revolving door on the job front makes you feel like you're going in circles. Flexibility, not your strong suit, is called for this month, especially from the 3rd on. Until mid-month it's best to keep on the same path when it comes to your health. Switching gyms could prove more costly and less beneficial than you thought.

VIRGO (AUG. 24 - SEPT. 23)

The home fires are burning—as in a home improvement project that's a little too hot for comfort. You may have to scale back in order not to break the budget. By mid-month, your earning quotient soars, and you're able to finesse just about any deal. Around the 27th, though, romance fuels your desires.

LIBRA (SEPT. 24 - OCT. 23)

Hide the credit cards from the 5th to 6th, when the urge to splurge strikes. Anything bought on impulse now brings little long-term satisfaction. By mid-month your social calendar is full, which keeps you hopping from morn 'til night. You charm one and all, and find passionate sub-plots to keep things interesting.

persuasive best. Moneymaking ideas abound late in the month, but not all prove sound.

AQUARIUS (JAN. 21- FEB. 18)

The fog lifts on the 6th. A deep discussion about personal truths brings you closer to a loved one. Meanwhile, it's time to see the light around the office. Some colleagues and folks you network with may need to be set straight. Improvise on the 27th, a time when you have all the right answers.

PISCES (FEB. 19 - MAR. 20)

After the 6th it's easier to make your dream home a reality. You'll have to learn to speak up, though. The more people you talk to, the better your chance of getting a hot tip for your move or renovation project. Around the 27th a penchant for quiet twosomes is indulged, when someone close tunes into your wavelength.

Star Struck

What the stars have planned for you

GEMINI (MAY 22 - JUNE 21)

Your special charm gets a booster shot. Expect a mega-dose of appreciation from friends, both close and not so, from the 6th to 9th. If you're free, a few strategically aimed come-hither looks won't go unnoticed mid-month and could lead to something thrilling. Time a request for perks at work for the 27th.

CANCER (JUNE 22 - JULY 22)

Get ready for your closeup! Venus sets the stage for more than one love scene until the 18th. And you're inclined to take the initiative for a change. The bosom of your family is decidedly comforting at month's end. Sage financial counsel from an older, wiser relative helps you out of an impasse on the 29th.

LEO (JULY 23 - AUG. 23)

Star power: you've got it in spades this month. Right on cue, you're given just the right social situations in which to shine. You can dazzle others with brilliant ideas from the 6th to 11th. Later, expect some drama on the work front.

SCORPIO (OCT. 24 - NOV. 22)

You have energy to spare now, and marshal it towards major goals. If only the scenario didn't contain so many sub-plots. At least your powerful intellect is kept busy dealing with them. Both business and pleasure unfold in ways that suit you around the 15th. Enjoy it, and don't further complicate things.

SAGITTARIUS (NOV. 23- DEC. 21)

Will it ever be a wrap? You feel pressured to wind things up, though if you wait they will resolve themselves. Meanwhile, a flurry of social invitations from the 6th to 9th lifts your spirits. Expanding your horizons through travel or study is favoured from the 27th on. An old friend helps you set clear goals.

CAPRICORN (DEC. 22 - JAN. 20)

You are no mere beast of burden, but meant to lead the pack. Time to kick over the traces and put yourself on track to impress higher-ups. Others will go where you lead, especially from the 6th to 9th, when you're at your

LIBRA,
OCTOBER 7, 1976, LONDON, ONTARIO

Librans are known for classic beauty and class, qualities to which Rachel McAdams gives a thoroughly contemporary twist. Born in London, Ontario, she hit the Hollywood A-list with roles in Mean Girls (2004), The Notebook (2004) and Wedding Crashers (2005). Rachel's move up the Hollywood ladder was swift: by 2007, she had 17 movie credits on her resume, was nominated for 16 awards and took home 11. McAdams' chart shows she is much more intense than the average Libran, and the on-again-off-again pattern will colour both her work and love life for a while. But in 2008 her career is very much on, with two major releases slated and more projects in the works.

They're about to get more than they plea-bargained for.

LEONARDO DICAPRIO

Leonardo DiCaprio may not think of himself as a sex symbol, but a long list of Tinseltown's models and actresses would beg to differ. Although his post-Titanic "Leo-mania" frenzy put him at the top of the dream guy list of many Hollywood actresses, this heartthrob prefers supermodels. His not-so-long-lasting relationships with Victoria's Secret alumni Gisele Bündchen, Naomi Campbell and Rachel Hunter may not have left DiCaprio's heart battered and beaten—but it's his new role in Body of Lies as an ex-journalist turned CIA operative that leaves the blue-eyed babe more than a little bloody and bruised. Surely this planet-saving hero won't have any trouble convincing current supermodel girlfriend Bar Rafaeli to nurse his wounds.

1 GISELE BÜNDCHEN and DiCaprio—too beautiful to have ever had a fighting chance together—spent their five-year relationship breaking up and then hooking up again. Not so surprisingly, Bündchen had no problem moving on from the split to current beau Tom Brady, whom she snatched from his then-pregnant girlfriend Bridget Moynahan.

2 How to Lose Friends and Alienate People star KIRSTEN DUNST was caught canoodling with DiCaprio at LA hotspot Privilege during one of his many off-again stints with Gisele Bündchen. The two were reportedly unable to take their eyes off each other at the club, but the apparent romance only lasted one night.

3 JESSICA BIEL is now heating it up with Justin Timberlake, but just before the two got together, it was rumored that Biel had her sights set on DiCaprio and tried desperately to set up a date with the three-time Oscar nominee.

4 Playboy model turned actress CARMEN ELECTRA has broken her fair share of hearts, including man-of-the-month DiCaprio, bad boy Dennis Rodman, muscle man Vin Diesel, heartthrob Colin Farrell and musician Dave Navarro. But Electra's wild ways appear to be slowing down now that she is engaged to Korn guitarist Rob Patterson.

5 Known for her violent outbursts, NAOMI CAMPBELL reportedly joined DiCaprio in his lawsuit against Playgirl after the mag tried to print full-frontal pics of the pair caught together while on a naked romp in Cuba. Astonishingly, no cell phone mishaps or hissy fits were ever reported.

6 HELENA CHRISTENSEN sparked DiCaprio's infatuation with Victoria's Secret models and the two dated briefly during the peak of "Leo-mania." Following her tryst with the sought-after hunk, Christensen also romanced the late Heath Ledger and has since moved on to rocker Paul Banks of Interpol.

7 JOSH HARTNETT doesn't exactly have the best track record when it comes to relationships. The 30-year-old actor has been linked to an impressive lineup of Hollywood's leading ladies including Julia Stiles, Scarlett Johansson, Katie Holmes and Rumor Willis. His latest conquest is British singer Nadine Coyle.

8 Maroon 5 frontman ADAM LEVINE has made a number of beautiful starlets swoon with his sexy lyrics. From Natalie Portman to Jessica Simpson to Paris Hilton, this singer/songwriter is sure to have enough material for at least a few more hit love songs about steamy relationships.

9 Brainy beauty NATALIE PORTMAN has a thing for brooding, soulful guys. The Harvard graduate has had the likes of Gael Garcia Bernal, Orlando Bloom, Hayden Christensen and Jake Gyllenhaal all vying for her attention. Portman has now fallen for the king of brooding musicians, folk-rock singer Devendra Banhart.

10 NICOLE KIDMAN could start up quite the collection of engagement rings. Shortly after splitting from then-better half Tom Cruise—and just before making fellow Aussie hubbie Keith Urban a daddy—the Academy Award winner was rumored to have been secretly engaged to rocker Lenny Kravitz.

11 Press-shy ORLANDO BLOOM is trying to keep his latest tryst with Australian model/actress Miranda Kerr out of the public eye after having several of his high-profile liaisons splattered across the tabloids—namely his relationship with Kate Bosworth, which was put in jeopardy after Bloom was spotted cozying up to Kirsten Dunst.

12 Canadian hottie HAYDEN CHRISTENSEN has a habit of falling for his co-stars. The blue-eyed actor fell for Rachel Bilson while filming Jumper; romanced Natalie Portman on the set of the Star Wars films and hooked up with Sienna Miller on the set of Factory Girl—where their on-screen love scene is rumored to have been anything but simulated.

13 It's nothing but Hollywood A-listers for EDWARD NORTON, whose past flames include Drew Barrymore, Cameron Diaz, Salma Hayek and Naomi Watts. But it's his current girlfriend, Canadian mega-producer Shauna Robertson, who has this playboy smitten.

14 British beauty KATE BECKINSALE frolicked with Colin Farrell briefly before settling down with hubbie director Len Wiseman. A true romantic at heart, Beckinsale is already thinking about her nine-year-old daughter Lily's love life.

15 KATE BOSWORTH wastes no time dating a guy she can't picture getting serious with—but her relationships seem to have a two-year expiry date. The 24-year-old actress spent two years with Gilmore Girls star Matt Czuchry, another two years with Orlando Bloom and, you guessed it, is going on two years with her current beau, British model James Rousseau. Stay tuned.

16 RACHEL BILSON exudes a certain power of seduction—so much so that her co-stars can't seem to resist her. The former The OC starlet dated co-star Adam Brody before hooking up with her I Love You, New York co-star Hayden Christensen, whom she met on the set of Jumper.

17 Not one to shy away from a scandal, SIENNA MILLER has been caught in a few faux pas of her own including hooking up with married men. Miller fancied Jude Law when he was already spoken for, and most recently she reportedly caused Brothers & Sisters star Balthazar Getty to split from his wife and mother of his four children.

18 SALMA HAYEK has dated the best of the best among Hollywood's elite—from George Clooney to Edward Norton to Ben Affleck. But following her split from billionaire fiancé Francois-Henri Pinault, the newly single mom only has eyes for her one-year-old daughter, Valentina Paloma.

Newman with Tom Cruise at a car race

Newman and Woodward

Newman at age 83

Paul Newman

January 26, 1925 – September 26, 2008

HE was the epitome of the Hollywood Golden Era. His intense blue eyes, his great characters and, of course, his good looks, not only made the ladies swoon, but also made him a screen star. “Paul Newman played many unforgettable roles. But the ones for which he was proudest never had top billing on the marquee,” his daughters said in a statement following their father’s death from cancer.

But aside from his work in Hollywood, the Oscar-winning actor was best known for his business, Newman’s Own, which since 1982 has made popcorn, tomato sauce, lemonade and salad dressing and has donated more than $250 million to charities selected by Newman himself.

Newman leaves behind five adult children: Stephanie and Susan with his first wife, Jacqueline Witte, and Clea, Nell, and Lissy with his wife of 50 years, Joanne Woodward. (A son, Scott, died of an accidental drug overdose in 1978.) “Our father was a rare symbol of selfless humility, the last to acknowledge what he was doing was special. Intensely private, he quietly succeeded beyond measure in impacting the lives of so many with his generosity,” his family said in a statement. “He will be profoundly missed by those whose lives he touched, but he leaves us with extraordinary inspiration to draw upon.”
